As is well known, all the official communications from the President to the Senate from the beginning of this Government are preserved, and General Anson McCook, when Secretary of the Senate, selected a few of the greatest historical interest and had them bound in red morocco overs. They are all executive documents, and all but one are nominations to office. That one is a message from the President of the United States, and reads as follows:

MAKE TRAVEL FREE!

THE LEDGER INTENDS TO KEEP THE BALL ROLLING!

The spelling of polltax is not ours: and THE LEDGER'S of jection is to the pole tax that we have been paying all along.

Aside from this, however, a polltax levy would not tax all the people equally. How about non residents? How about your "rich corporations?" How about your big landowners whose farms would be greatly enhanced in value by having free pikes running through them? Your plan, Mr. News man, would make the poor laborer, who earns $1 25 a day, and who isn't able to hire a burgy to ride over a pike, pay just exactly as much as the man who is worth $100,000, keeps "a carriage and four" and rides over the proader democracy than that gain through free pikes, and not court the bugbear of additional taxes they vould pay to secure travel free.

Some of these advantages are so well tated by "E. C. H.," a correspondent of The Flemingsburg Gazette, that we cop rticle entire:

qually applicable to Mason.

qually applicable to Mason. He says:

'Free roads for Kentucky is now being agitated all over the state, and why should we be behind on awakening up in this part of the state on the subject? Our roads should be owned by the county and not by private corporations. A free system of roads would be a great improvement to our county and business would be greatly improved. Every farmer, school-teacher, doctor, merchant, black-amith and traders of all kinds would resilize a benefit beyond expectation. improved. Every farmer, school-tescher, doctor, merchant, black-smith and traders of all kinds would realize a benefit beyond expectation. It allows trade a free sweep; it allows the farmer to go to the Postoffice after his mail free; he can go to the blacksmith shops and have a shoe put on his horse without paying more toil than his work would cost; he can go to the store for a package of coffee or allows his work would cost; he can go to the store for a package of coffee or allows his marketing to pay his toil; he can go many times where he allows his marketing to pay his toil; he can go many times where he allows his goods to go to waste because toilgate takes all his profit, consequently he loses his marketing and the toilgate gets nothing only hinders trade. Free roads bring us closer to other states; it allows the traveling man to sall his goods at a less per cent, to the country merchant; the merchant can have them handed from the railroad for less money, and oft times the farmer and omuch handing that the railroads are now getting. Many farmers would hand their grain to Mayawille and bring back a loads goods or coal that was the farmer and push this matter. Outside of a few stockholders and tolly gaic keepers there will be but few to oppose such a more. It will enhance the value of property far beyond the small tax that it will take to buy the mods, and the only mistake is that we have not paid for all of them and control then. Let us have feer coads and remove this great handless.

Schofield's Funny Break as to the Conduct of an Orchestra.

How Conductor Sousa was taken to task by General Schoffeld for his lack of discipline is told by The San Francisco Chronicle.

The last echo of one of Sousa's over-time. The last experience of the band and south of the Pair Grounds when General Schodiel stepped in front of the band and saluted the distinguished leader. Sousa returned the salute and sent one of his men to escort the General up into the band stand.

"That music was beautiful—beautiful," exclaimed the General as he shook Sousa's hand warmly. "I am astonished, sir, that you get such results with so little discipline."

There is nothing that Sousa prides himself more on than being one of the strictest of disciplinarians, and he was naturally nettled at the General's criti-cism.

strictes of disciplinarians, and he was naturally nettled at the General's criticism.

"Why, General, my men are under perfect control. I'm sure they are thoroughly drilled, and I can hardly believe that there is any lack of discipline. I have never noticed it."

"No, that's just it; you don't see it," persisted the General. "I saw it, though. Do you know that as soon as you turn your back on one side of your band to shake your bation at the other those fellows all quit playing? Of course you down that the property of the desired that the desired have been as the control of the desired have been as considered that the General, lies, of course, in the fact that when a section of Souss's men became silent as he turned to the other was when the music so required.
